BOZEKEN ANNOUNCES RELOCATION DUE TO GROWTH

WAYNE, PA. (February 8, 2018) – Bozeken Creative and Production will relocate its offices and production studios to the Commons at Valley Forge East in Phoenixville, PA. The move to their newly purchased building will take place in the spring of 2018.

“The decision to expand our footprint was a logical step in our business growth and strategy,” said Ken Michaud, Creative Director and Owner. “And being able to design our studio and edit suites with the latest technology will give us a tremendous creative advantage and help continue our growth as a leader in creating effective digital content.”

Working with Brandywine Builders, the company is designing the plans to all three floors of the building including enhanced staff renovations and a larger studio that will meet the company needs for video production shoots.

“We’re particularly focused on the advanced technology and green initiatives to better serve our staff and clients” said John Galante, VP of Sales and Business Development. “The move is definitely an exciting and a much needed development.”

Bozeken Creative and Production was founded in 2007. The full service production company’s clients include major television networks, large corporations and local businesses. Their award-winning staff of writers, producers, editors and cinematographers handle video projects of every scale, around the country and around the world. Regardless of the scope or the budget, they approach every project the same way, with adventurous spirits and innovative minds.
